Becks beer, also known as Brauerei Beck & Co., is a popular lager brewed in Bremen, northern Germany. In 2001, Interbrew agreed to purchase Becks Brewery for 1.8 billion euros. The acquisition made the brewer the fourth largest in Germany. In 2002, Interbrew announced that it would continue to produce Becks beers under the Beck's brand. In 2007, the company reached a new milestone, becoming the largest German brewing company.
